ANNUAL REPORT

Of Activities and Achievements against Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation in 2016, and Targets in 2017
(Due from 1st January to 31st December 2016)

I. General Overview

The economic environment, politics, and social security in some Western and Asian countries, including the United States of America, change remarkably from one year to another, impacting other nations in terms of the migration of millions of people for living.

Meanwhile, in 2016, the Royal Government of Cambodia put much effort into keeping the growth of the economy to be around 7% per annum and focused on security, protection and social safety throughout the country in order to guarantee political stability; increase living standards of government officials, workers, farmers, and general citizens as well as secure the safety of tourists and investors.

There is only one purpose for the migration of Cambodians, that is to better their living standards in the aspects of economic growth, modernization of technology and materials of each family.

In fact, some people have benefited from migration, especially legal migration, yet there are some people who have kept looking for jobs outside the country by taking risks rather than going through a legal procedure, and they often face high risks of various forms of victimization, such as human trafficking, labor exploitation, sexual exploitation or abuse, organ trafficking, violence, drug abuse and trade, or other crimes which cause more male, female and children victims. This has put an additional burden on families and society to confront health, education, economic and social issues as well as these crimes.

Recently, there has been news of organ and surrogacy trades to illegally take babies outside the country, which suggests a new kind of crime of smuggling or cross border infant trafficking. These issues need to be paid more careful attention to, and solutions and immediate prevention by setting up legal frameworks for surrogacy management should be developed as soon as possible.

In the response to this issue, Samdech Akeak Moha Sena Padey Techo Hun Sen, Prime Minister of the Royal Government of Cambodia and Samdech Kralahom Sar Kheng, Deputy Prime Minister, Minister of the Interior and Chairman of the National Committee for Counter Trafficking, have addressed some key points on strengthening local and international alliances and encouraging all levels in the commission to actively implement activities and cooperate with all ministries, related entities, existing authorities, local and international non-governmental organization partners and encourage anticipation for a successful elimination of human trafficking.

In 2016, activities including cracking down on offenses, victim protection, perpetrator prosecution and prevention that were simultaneously conducted in all target areas by focusing on women and children. National and international cooperation was strengthened and enhanced widely. At the same time, the general department collaborated with NGO Partners to conduct a local job market research to provide choices of work for people, particularly teenagers who need to earn a good living. The mid-term evaluation of Plan of Action (2014-2016) has been carried out by independent assessors to see the strengths and weaknesses of implementation and for revision of the Action Plan for 2017 and 2018.

The result of action implementation at all levels of the anti-human trafficking commission in 2016 is detailed below in the Annual Report, which was compiled from 6 ministries, 22 entities, 25 provinces and capitals, 24 NGO partners and other important national and international news.

Comparative Graph of Migration (By Month Reported by Department of Anti-Human Trafficking and Juvenile Protection of National Police Commissariat) from 2014 to 2016

B.6.2. Private Recruitment Agency Management

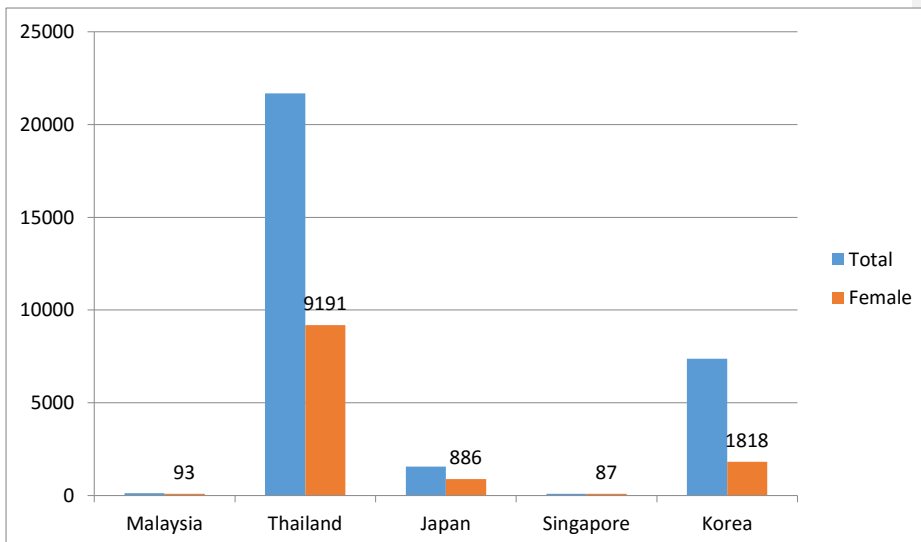

For sending migrant workers to foreign countries, the Ministry of Labor and Vocational Training required each recruitment agent to train and teach foreign languages, primary basic skills, working attitudes, rules of the destination country, living habits, customs and cultures of the countries where they will migrate to; and to prepare legal documents and workplace letters in that country before sending them to those places.

Statistics in 2016 has shown 60 private firms that recruited, sent and monitored regular migrant workers in five countries through recruitment agencies and the government's Electronic Permit System (EPS) for workers migrating to Korea. The total number of recruited workers increased in 2016 to 30,825 from 25,263 in 2015, an increase of 4,862 persons (12,125 females) equivalent to 18.72%:

- Malaysia 123 persons (93 females)
- Thailand 21,682 persons (9,191 females)
- Japan 1,562 persons (886 females)
- Singapore 87 persons (87 females)
- Korea 7,371 persons (1,868 females)

The Working Group interviewed 3,038 workers (1,188 females) to determine the identity of suspects who illegally lead them to cross the border, yet there was no information obtained on the brokers’ identities.

From the interviews with 571 children (230 girls), it was found that:

In 2016, a research on Job Opportunity Markets was conducted under the support and cooperation of Cambodia ACTs, whose research result has been launched in a Seminar in order to collect more inputs. The purpose of this research is to create local employment opportunities where workers can work rather than taking hazardous risks to find jobs outside the country.

V. Conclusion and Evaluation

A. Strengths

Based on the Report of Crackdowns from authorities both police and gendarmerie, there was a 13 case decrease in 2015 compared to 2014 and 20 case decrease in 2016 compared to 2015, while sexual exploitation cases increased by 7 in 2016. Overall, the results of anti-human trafficking actions this year has shown the careful attention and commitment of the Royal Government of Cambodia and all levels of administration, multi-police forces and other stakeholders who have closely and well cooperated to slow the pace of migration, school dropouts, and job employment risks outside country through brokers. Information access and awareness of the advantages and disadvantages of migration, tricks of brokers and impacts of human trafficking have been spread to vulnerable areas, especially to teenagers inside and outside schools, and communities where there are migrants. Victims have been well paid attention to by being provided with life skills education, skills and jobs as well as the good care from institutions and NGO partners. Law enforcement has been strengthened and inspected for careful legal procedure enforcement.

The results achieved depended on the following:

1. National Policy Reform in all Sectors of the Royal Government has brought more employment opportunities to millions of Cambodian people and more earnings for good living standards.
2. Policies on Village and Communal Security is still the most mobilized element to urge all local forces to come together for safety and security of people. They are involved in crack downs, preventing vulnerability, and reinforcing and rescuing victims more effectively.
3. National Policy on Work and Occupations (2015-2025) and Policy of Labor Migration for Cambodia (December 2014) as well as legal norms related to the Migration Flow Management to foreign countries through private recruitment agencies have increased more chances of work inside the country and legal work outside the country, and reduced risks to migrant workers.
4. Policy of Migration Flow Management is also a preventive part of illegal migrant flow to Cambodia for employment which could be a push factor for Cambodian workers to migrate abroad.
5. The royal government has also committed to finding any cooperative work with other developed countries to send thousands of Cambodian workers for legal foreign employment.
6. The Royal Government of Cambodia has also provided legality for migrant workers who illegally migrated, are migrating and staying for work in other countries, to gain legal rights, job safety at their workplace and gain full work benefits for tens of thousands of workers.
7. The Royal Government of Cambodia has continued to be highly committed against trafficking in persons by protecting the legal rights and benefits of people and punishing criminals.

8. The Laws on Suppression of Human Trafficking and Sexual Exploitation, Criminal Procedure Code, and Penal Code have been carefully implemented. Also, a number of other legal regulations were created to supplement and coordinate the effective implementation of the laws.
9. Signed mutual Agreements on Criminal Procedures with five countries (Vietnam, Lao, Russia, England and Peru), Agreements on Expatriation with seven countries (Thailand, Lao, Vietnam, China, Korea, France and Russia) and Prisoner Extradition Agreements with seven countries (Thailand, Vietnam, Australia, India, Russia, England and Peru).
10. Working procedures and cooperative relations with ministries and other entities have been tightened and expanded widely to reach a common goal.
11. There have been broad strategies for preventing, cracking down, punishing criminals and protecting victims by identifying the signs of hidden victims and providing rehabilitation, reintegration and repatriation.
12. The General Secretariat of NCCT has played important roles in connecting and coordinating with relevant institutions and in promoting law enforcement, norms and duties of ministries, institutions, entities and partners in the framework of the National Committee for Counter Trafficking at both national and subnational levels to be more active and effective.
13. The skills, attitudes and commitment of law enforcers have improved a lot in applying investigative techniques and evidence collection, and inside the court system in human trafficking cases by focusing on the size and network of each trafficking case.
14. Parties in multi-sector forces at both national and subnational levels are coming together in power, resources and means to react against human trafficking on time and in more effective ways.

B. Residual Points and Challenges

The simultaneous efforts and determination of the Royal Government of Cambodia and of law enforcement officials in all levels of the NCCT framework above have had positive results, but there are some residual points and challenges to be paid attention to, amended and solved as follows:

1. The pace of migrant flow or migration is still in progress, but the management is not sufficient yet and data collection of in/out workers is not clear and precisely classified of the number of workers who migrated.
2. The situational of management and data systems of Cambodian workers outside the country is not strong yet.
3. Attempts to illegally migrate to other countries for jobs and living standards are a challenge for law enforcement and carry a high risk of exploitation. This is despite the illegal migration of workers to other countries being prohibited and resulting in arrest by the authorities and being expatriated, imprisoned or fined or tortured.
4. Some Cambodian workers' identities have been falsified to be sent to illegal fishing boats and are trafficked to other countries. At the same time, there are some signs of new crimes to be concerned with as well.
5. The number of in-custody-persons (victims) in foreign countries is at large and those in-custody-persons were continuously repatriated to Cambodia with other victims whose number gradually increases; and we lack; and we lack state-owned rehabilitation centers for those trafficking victims.
6. Despite widespread information about the risks, some people still trust in brokers in order to illegally migrate for employment, marriage, surrogacy, etc. Recently, there are a growing number of entertainment establishments with hidden prostitution that is another source of human trafficking, sexual exploitation and other crimes.

7. Some ministries, entities, and institutions have yet to value the significance of cooperation, and have also yet to fill the gaps of demand for anti-human trafficking and victim protection services.
8. In provinces/capital, the changed compositions of Secretariat Working Groups have not been well assigned and limited the implementation and follow up of work progress.
9. The absence of restrictions on the actions of recruitment agencies or employers who disobey the law and who put migrant workers in danger. The Government does not have any clear solution and this impacts workers and their families as a result.
10. Justice Working Group has an important part to facilitate the legal framework and cooperation whereby we see some gaps in criminal justice, cooperation, punishment, and trafficking victim rescuing outside the country that should be taken action on as a priority.
11. Some relevant legal standards have not been so improved that some crimes can happen in loopholes.

VI. Targets in 2017

To close the gaps and strengthen the efficiency of the four strategic implementation areas: (1) Improvement of Law Enforcement, Policies and Cooperation; (2) Promotion of Protection and Prevention; (3) Enhancement of Criminal Justice; and (4) Promotion of Victim Protection against Human Trafficking in all forms towards Cambodian people of the Kingdom of Cambodia, such as smuggling and labor exploitation, sexual exploitation, organ trade, baby and child cross-border smuggling and labor abuse in fishery industries, and to tighten working framework procedures more effectively, the National Committee for Counter Trafficking has set key important targets as below:
